The Jackson Philatelic Society (JPS) is an active group of philatelic enthusiasts. The society is an educational organization fostering the knowledge and understanding of geography, history and cultures, through the collection and exchange of US and international postage stamps.

Stamp collecting has often been called “the hobby of kings and the king of hobbies”. Collectors include individuals of all walks of life. While President Franklin Roosevelt may have been the most famous US collector, other well-known collectors include tennis superstar Maria Sharapova, musician John Lennon, and French President Nicholas Sarkozy.

The JPS meets every third Saturday of the month at the Flowood Public Library from 10 AM to 12 noon. Members of the Public are welcome to attend the meetings and, if interested, become a member. Stamp collecting has no age limit, similar to collecting baseball cards etc. We welcome young people starting at the age of 10 .
